BOEHLING AND MORTON ARE LIKELY TO CLASH

If Connolly Plays It Will Be in Moeller's Place in Right-Detroit Near Top in Race.

BY J. ED GRILLO.

Chic Gandill will play first base for the Nationals today. He and Howard Shanks both will return to the regular line-up. Manager Griffith had his entire square working out for more than two hours this morning under his personal supervision. Bruce, the V. P. I. outfielder, did not put in an appearance. It seems that the youngster hurt his knee a few days ago and that he is waiting for it to mend before reporting for

It is not likely that Connolly will break into the game today, but if he does he probably will take Moeller's

Joe Boehling will in all probability pitch the third game of the series with Cleveland today, while it is likely that Guy Morton, the Clevelands' sensational youngster, will be pitted against him. Morton was badly beaten by the Griffmen recently in Cleveland, but he was not believed to be at his best that day. He worked in two innings Saturday, during which he held the locals hitless, so that there is reason for believing Morton is in good form now.

lieving Morton is in good form now.

Considering that it was the first time for fully a year that he had essayed to pitch and was up against one of the best-hitting teams in the league, Bill Donovan's performance against Detroit yesterday cannot be figured a disappointment. He was beaten but not disgraced, and if the veteran would get himself in good physical condition he might still be able to win a few games for his team. Criticism of the Detroit club's action in making a jump from New York to Detroit to play this game is not well founded. According to press reports, there were 15,000 paid admissions in the inclosure, and with a salary list higher than ever before in the history of the game, a club cannot be blamed for making every effort to pick up all the gate receipts possible.

Carl Cushion, who for a month or so did terrific hitting for the Minneapolis team, for which he played first base, has been benched and Autrey, a first baseman recently released by St. Paul, has been signed and is now playing in his place. Cashion did not make a very good impression as a first baseman and his hitting also fell down badly. This fact will undoubtedly upset the plans Manager Griffith had in mind to give Cashion a chance at the local first base next spring. When Cashion was sent to Minneapolis it was with the understanding that he would be given a chance to develop into a first baseman. He has made a failure of this effort, however, and cannot now be considered as a possible successor to Chic Gandil or Rippy Williams.

Joe Jackson, who is playing first base for the Indians, is so much an-noyed by his injured arm that he pro-poses to have an X-ray examination made of the injured member today to determine what the trouble is. If it is

The White Sox lead has been down to a very small margin, Detroit being only six points behind the lead-ers, so that it is possible for the Jen-nings crew to pass into first place

Once at the top of the ladder it is not Once at the top of the ladder it is not going to be an easy matter to dislodge the Tigers. It is a team which has steadily been gaining confidence in itself and with the world series as an incentive, it will be one of the best hustling teams in either league.

Ty Cobb is giving more attention to base ball this year than he has in some time, and as a result he comes pretty near leading the other players in the American League in every department. The wonderful strength he gives his team would make almost any team in the circuit a contender in the race. Cobb does more than any one else on that Detroit team to make it a winner.

It seems that the usual Mack luck is It seems that the usual Mack luck is once more prevailing and that he has picked up a coming star in Malone, the Mount St. Joseph College infielder. Malone is touted as being a natural ball player, who with a little experience will develop into a star of the first class. Mack has picked up many such youngsters in this way. Eddie Collins was unheard of until he developed under Mack and became one of the greatest players in the game. Mack is not going to have a losing team very long. He is sure to improve it with a lot of young players in due time, and even in the present race he is not apt to finish has another year to handle the Quakers on the cinder path.

It is an open secret at Franklin Field, however, that Orton has already outlived his usefulness, and although his resignation will not be asked for, it would be received with gratification by the Pennsylvania authorities, who are of a mind in the belief that Orton failed signally to keep the team that Murphy had bult up in condition for the 1914 games, and that he did even worse this year, when all the points the Quakers made were scored by four men, despite the fact there were ten or a dozen of championship caliber on

No one is willing to admit that Orton No one is willing to admit that Orton is defective in knowledge of track athletics or taining, but there is unanimity of opinion as to his failure to grasp the situaton presented to him at Franklin Field and of his inability to recognize the conditions confronting him. It is a matter of great regret to Pennsylvania men to be forced to reach this conclusion, because no one had a more honorable record in Pennsylvania athletics as a student than Orton.

Rowing is the only sport in which the Quakers feel they are keeping abreast of the times. They realize that George Brooke was too hard pressed by outside activities to devote the time necessary to the development of the foot ball team. Although Brooke will continue as head coach next fall, he will have assigned to him a corps of able assistants, so that he will be ensabled to devote his time to the working out of original plays, a branch of foot ball coaching in which he was most successful at Swarthmore.

As to base ball, there seems little ground for finding fault with Roy Thomas. Although the Quaker team has won only five of eighteen games, its poor showing is attributed chiefly to the lack of pitchers. There is not a single boxman in the squad who is consistent. Neither Spielman nor Wishner has pitched continuously good ball, fault with the proponents. is defective in knowledge of track ath-

DETROIT, June 7 .- Wild Bill Done van, for years the idol of Detroit fans, tried yesterday to show his New York club the way to victory against the Tigers. He failed, 6 to 4.

Cheered by thousands of old-time friends, the Yankees' manager opposed Cavet for seven innings, during which time the contest was a slugging match. Six of New York's hits were made off Cavet in the first two innings. Vitt's fielding was superb. Score:

According to press reports, there is much dissatisfaction at the University of Pennsylvania because of the comparatively poor showing of the track team this year and last. The blame is laid at the door of George Orton, coach, it being held that he has not made the best of the material at his disposal Hartsdale, when Miss Marie Wagner of the Hamilton Grange Lawn Tennis Club and state champion, with A. J. Ostendorf, defeated Miss Margaret Grove and J. H. Steinkampf in the final round of the mixed doubles in straight sets at 6—1, 6—3. Miss Wagner, who has been playing in phenomenal form during the past week, was again seen to advantage and received splendid support from her partner. The team work of the winning pair completely demoralized Miss Grove and Steinkampf in the first set, when the latter made but eleven aces, two of these being scored by the losing combination and the remaining nine on faults by their opponents.

Miss Grove and her partner plucked up courage in the second set and took best of the material at his disposal. his right to the distinction because of years of painstaking effort; such is true of Moakley of Cornell, Fitzpatrick of Princeton, and others.

Pennsylvania has had, perhaps, the poorest year in the history of its athletics. The foot ball team went through a disastrous season, the track squad has not been able to do as well as when Mike Murphy was in charge, and the base ball team has taken only five contests out of about eighteen played. The only sport in which the Quakers seem to be having their share of success is rowing, and some changes in the coaching policy of the other sports are foreshadowed.

Several changes have taken place in the personnel of more than one amateur club in the past week. Two clubs have new managers, and players of others have been released and new men signed. C. D. Strohecker succeeds J. Seabrook as manager of the Central Presbyterian club of the Northwestern Sunday School circuit, and T. H.
